

THE GLOBAL WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

at the George Washington University advances gender equality around the world. GWI believes that positive change happens when actions are driven by research, and that the most authentic evidence is generated in partnership with those who work in and know the field best.

A leading global research institution on violence against women and girls, including in conflict and humanitarian settings, GWI understands the value of partnerships. GWI supports, uplifts, and documents the work of women's movements to end gender-based violence globally. The institute convenes world-class faculty, researchers, practitioners, activists, donors, and policymakers to focus on the most critical issues facing women and girls today.

As a university-wide institution at a premier academic establishment in Washington DC, GWI prepares the next generation of leaders. By strengthening the global knowledge base on gender issues and violence prevention, GWI is a catalyst for change.

WHAT WORKS 2

GWI is proud to lead the consortium delivering the research component of What Works to Prevent Violence against Women & Girls: Impact at Scale. This seven-year initiative from the UK Foreign, Commonwealth & Development Office is the largest ever project studying and upscaling effective measures to prevent gender-based violence.

GWI's core partners are Aga Khan University (Pakistan), the Equality Institute (Australia), Johns Hopkins University (USA), University of Cape Town (South Africa), and the Women's Economic Empowerment Hub at Kenyatta University (Kenya).

Dozens of individual and organizational resource partners from around the world have joined this research consortium, including the Sexual Violence Research Initiative (SVRI), MenEngage, and others.

Our research consortium works alongside an implementation consortium led by the International Rescue Committee (IRC), with Raising Voices, CARE International, Social Development Direct (SDD), and Breakthrough. They will support innovative programs and scale up successful interventions.
